

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Siraj Shaik Aziz is an advocate and solicitor in the Supreme Court of Singapore. He is also a Research Fellow with the Asian Business & Rule of Law Initiative under the Centre for Cross-Border Commercial Law in Asia at Singapore Management University's School of Law. His current research focuses on international investment and commercial arbitration. Siraj also serves as a Legislative Assistant to the Nominated Member of Parliament of Singapore, Professor Mahdev Mohan. Siraj graduated from Singapore Management University School of Law. He completed his training contract at Straits Law Practice LLC where he assisted on various civil and criminal matters before the Singapore State Courts and Supreme Court. He may be contacted at: siraj.sa.2010@law.smu.edu.sg

Hyungbok Chae is a Professor of Law at Kyungpook National University Law School where he teaches Public International Law, International Human Rights Law, and EU Law. He received his Ph.D. in Law (Docteur en Droit) from the Université d'Aix-Marseille III. Dr. Chae is the Director of the EU Center and the Daegu Human Rights Center at Kyungpook National University.

His research is focused on international and European human rights. He also served as the President of the Korean Society of Contemporary European Studies (KSCES) in 2016. He may be contacted at: europia@knu.ac.kr

Shucheng Wang is currently a law faculty at the City University of Hong Kong for the JD, LL.M., and LL.B. programs. He holds the Chutian Scholar Professorship at Zhongnan University of Economics and Law in China, and is an Affiliated Faculty at the Global Institute for Health and Human Rights, State University of New York at Albany, US. He completed his Ph.D. through the Sino-US Fulbright Doctoral Dissertation Program. His dissertation, entitled "Presumption of Constitutionality: A Comparative Perspective," was awarded the "National Outstanding Ph.D. Dissertation Prize" by the Academic Degrees Committee of the State Council and the Ministry of Education of the PRC. Dr. Wang was the only recipient of this award in the field of law nationwide in 2011. In addition, he holds a Master's degree in International Human Rights Law from the University of Oxford where he was a Clarendon Scholar. Dr. Wang has published over sixty articles in refereed English and Chinese in law journals in the US, Australia, Hong Kong, South Korea, the UK and Mainland China, including Human Rights Quarterly, Public Law Review, Hong Kong Law Journal, Journal of East Asia and International Law, Statute Law Review, and Chinese Journal of Law [Faxue Yanjiu]. He may be contacted at: shucwang@cityu.edu.hk

Congyan Cai is a Professor of International Law at Xiamen University School of Law, China. He obtained his B.A. (History), Master and Ph.D. (International Law) from Xiamen University. He was simultaneously nominated as Fulbright Scholar (2011-12), and Global Research Fellow (2011-12) at New York University School of Law, US. He is an attorney-at-law and commercial arbitrator in China. His research focuses on public international law, international investment law, and the WTO law. He has published several monographs such as “Analogy and the Logic of the Development of International Law” (2012, in Chinese). He has also published many articles in various referred law reviews including the European Journal of International Law, Chinese Journal of International Law, Journal of International Economic Law, Journal of World Investment & Trade, Journal of East Asia and International Law, and Manchester Journal of International Economic Law (both in Chinese and English). He may be contacted at: caicongyan@xmu.edu.cn

Chinyere Ezeoke is a Senior Lecturer at the Faculty of Law, University of Malaya, Malaysia. Her main teaching and research interests include Shipping Law, Marine Insurance Law, International Business Transactions Law, and Oil and Gas Law. Dr. Ezeoke obtained her D.Phil. in Law from the University of Buckingham, UK and an LL.M. from the University of Nottingham, UK. Prior to joining the University of Malaya, she taught at the Department of Law of Carleton University, Canada. She has many years of experience both in law firms and in-house as a maritime lawyer. She was a Marine Legal Advisor at Fednav Limited Canada and also worked as Foreign Attorney at Yoshida & Partners, a shipping law firm based in Tokyo. She is a solicitor and advocate of the Supreme Court of Nigeria. She may be contacted at: cmezeoke@um.edu.my

Udin Silalahi is a Senior Lecturer and Chief Editor of Law Review Faculty of Law Universitas Pelita Harapan, Tangerang, Indonesia and part-time lecturer in European Studies at the Postgraduate University of Indonesia. His research interests are antitrust and competition law, comparative competition law, competition policy, merger and acquisitions, and political economy. He received his Bachelor of Law from Atma Jaya University Yogyakarta in 1985. He obtained his Master of Law in 1995 and Doctorate degree in 2001 from the University of Friedrich-Alexander Erlangen-Nuernberg, Erlangen, Germany. He was a part-time consultant with the Commission for Supervision of Business Competition in 2002-13. He may be contacted at: udin.silalahi@uph.edu

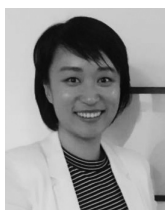

Jongcheol Kim teaches constitutional law in Yonsei University School of Law in Seoul and is currently serving as President of the Korean Association of Law and Society. He also taught at Santa Clara University School of Law, US as a Distinguished Visiting Professor and Global Centennial Scholar. His professional interests cover not only Korean Constitutional Law, but also comparative constitutional law, and socio-legal theories. Professor Kim studied at Seoul National University obtaining his LL.B. and the LL.M. Then, he transferred to the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE) for his Ph.D. in Law with scholarships from the Government of the Republic of Korea, and the British Commonwealth and Foreign Affairs (now Chevening Scholarship). Dr. Kim has worked as a witness for the Constitutional Court of the Republic of Korea, and is a policy advisor for a number of government institutions and non-governmental organizations. Professor Kim has contributed a number of articles in English and Korean in books published by Cambridge University Press, Routledge, and Edward Elgar Publishing and the prominent Korean law reviews including Korean Public Law Review, Korean Constitutional Law Review, and Korean Journal of Law and Society. He may be contacted at: jkim386@yonsei.ac.kr

Yuji Hosaka is Professor of Political Science and the Head of the Dokdo Research Institute at Sejong University, Seoul, Korea. He graduated from the University of Tokyo (B.A.), and Korea University (Ph.D.). Professor Hosaka currently teaches the history between Korea and Japan, Dokdo issues from the viewpoints of history, international law and political economy.

His main research focuses on historical issues between Korea and Japan such as the Dokdo territorial issue, the Yasukuni Shrine issue, the issues relating to Korean ‘comfort women’ during Japanese occupation, and the constitutional amendment controversy. His notable works include The Textbook of Dokdo in the Republic of Korea (2012), The Study of Joseon Seonbi and Japanese Samurai (2008), The Women Who Moved the History of Japan (2006), etc. Professor Hosaka also manages the website “Dokdo & East Asia,” available at <http://www.dokdoandeastasia.com>. He may be contacted at: hosaka@sejong.ac.kr

Hui Zhong completed her Ph.D. in law at the University of Queensland (Australia). Her doctoral research focused on the return of cultural heritage to its rightful country of origin, an inter-disciplinary topic, covering public international law, private international law, cultural heritage law, ancient Chinese law, and museum studies. Her book, entitled “China’s Cultural Heritage and International Law” has been accepted for publication by Routledge. Her broader research interests include international dispute resolution, and law of the sea. She may be contacted at: hui.zhong@uq.net.au

Yoshiaki Sato is the Vice Dean and Professor of Law at Seikei University, where he teaches Public International Law, Cultural Heritage Law, and Sports and the Law. As a graduate of the University of Tokyo (LL.B., LL.M., Ph.D.), he is currently the Secretary of the Committee on Outreach of the Japanese Society of International Law. In addition to serving on editorial boards of several international journals, Professor Sato has been a member of the Council on East Asian Community since 2010. From 2011 to 2013, he was an Academic Associate at Harvard University. His research focuses on dispute settlement and regional cooperation in East Asia. His recent publications include “Open Regionalism: Creating Multi-Layered Orders in World Governance,” in East Asian Regionalism from a Legal Perspective: Current Features and a Vision for The Future (Tamio Nakamura ed.) (London: Routledge, 2009). He can be contacted at: sato@law.seikei.ac.jp

Kexian Ng is currently pursuing her LL.M. at Columbia Law School, New York, US. She is the LL.M. Representative and Executive Board Member of the Columbia Society for International Law. Kexian obtained her LL.B. from the University of Bristol, UK. Prior to pursuing her LL.M., she worked as a senior associate with Rajah & Tann Singapore LLP, one of ‘Big Four’ Singapore law firms with offices across Southeast Asia. This included a secondment to Yangon, Myanmar. Kexian has also worked for the UN Assistance to the Khmer Rouge Trials in Cambodia. Her interests are in public international law, international investment arbitration and international commercial arbitration. She has written several articles on international arbitration and dispute resolution in Asia. She may be contacted at: kexian.ng@gmail.com