

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Weidong Yang is Associate Professor of Law at North China Electricity Power University in China. He is also an active and experienced practicing lawyer and listed arbitrator in the field of energy and infrastructure. Professor Yang received his Ph.D. in law from China's Social Science Academy (CASS) in 2002 and was a senior visiting scholar and part-time professor at The American University's Washington Law College during 2008-09.

He has published several books and over 40 articles in some authoritative journals. His present research mainly focuses on international energy law and policies, private international law and international investment law. He may be contacted at: ywd@sunshinelaw.com.cn

Kenji Asano holds a Ph.D. in global environmental studies from Kyoto University and a Senior Research Scientist of the Central Research Institute of Electric Power Industry ("CRIEPI") and Guest Lecturer of the Institute of Innovation Research at Hitotsubashi University. Dr. Asano has more than ten years' research experience as an environmental economist working on renewable energy policy evaluation. As a researcher of CRIEPI since 2007, he has been involved in policy evaluation of Feed-in Tariff and bioenergy utilization. Between 2002 and 2004, Dr. Asano was a guest researcher at the Danish National Environmental Research Institute, focusing on renewable policies in selected European countries. In 2006-07, he conducted post-doctoral research at the Biomass Technology Research Center of the National Institute of Advanced Industrial Science and Technology (AIST) in Hiroshima, focusing on cost-effectiveness analysis of biofuel from wood residue. He may be contacted at: kenzias@gmail.com

Dr. Gary Lilienthal is Professor of Law at the University of Gondar in the Federal Democratic Republic of Ethiopia. He holds a Ph.D. in law from Curtin University in Western Australia. His doctoral thesis has been downloaded more than 2000 times in the United Kingdom. Dr. Lilienthal holds a high distinction level master's degree in Freudian and Lacanian psychoanalytic studies from Deakin University in Melbourne, Australia, as well as a Sydney University law degree and graduate diploma in legal practice from the College of Law in Sydney, Australia. He has presided over some 9500 commercial and family mediations in the United States. He has widely published many articles in international scholarly journals at the ISI, SCOPUS and ERA levels of indexation. Professor Lilienthal has been convenor of the ILO Law in Malaysia and published widely in the broad field of legal theory and meta-legal critical analysis. Most recently, Professor Lilienthal headed a multinational research collaboration in China focusing on the comparative law of forced labour. He may be contacted at: carrington.rand@icloud.com

Nehaluddin Ahmad is currently serving as Professor of Law at Sultan Sharif Ali Islamic University (UNISSA), Brunei Darussalam. He has served at several academic institutions in India, Tanzania, Malaysia, and Brunei Darussalam. His main teaching and research interests are Constitutional Law, International Law and Politics, Law and Technology, and Comparative Law. Professor Ahmad holds LL.D. (Doctor of Laws) from Meerut University, India, a LL.M. (Master of Laws in IT and Telecom. Law) from University of Strathclyde, Glasgow, UK. He was also awarded LL.M. /M.A/LL.B. from Lucknow University, India. Professor Ahmad was admitted at the Bar Council of India (UP) in 1976 and has practised as an advocate at Lucknow Bench of Allahabad High Court, India for a couple of years. As a prolific writer, he has published numerous research papers in international refereed journals, several of which are indexed to ISI/Scopus/Ulrich. A number of his articles are cited in High Court's/ Supreme Court's proceedings/ judgments in various countries and also cited by renowned academics of leading institutions with high reputation. He may be contacted at: ahmadnehal@yahoo.com

Yong Wang is Professor of International Law at East China University of Political Science and Law ("ECUPL"), China. He obtained LL.B., LL.M., and Ph.D. (International Law) from ECUPL. Afterwards, he completed post-doctoral study at Fudan University. Dr. Wang was nominated as 'Shuguang Scholar' by Shanghai Education Development Foundation and Shanghai Municipal Education Commission. His research focuses on Public International Law and Law of Treaties. Professor Wang has published many books and papers on those subjects. He may be contacted at: yongyongsh@163.com

Lin Zhang is Professor of Law at Fujian Normal University School of Law and Adjunct Professor at Korea University School of Law. He studied law at Shandong University of Science and Technology (LL.B.) and then obtained his Ph.D. degree from the University of Hong Kong in 2010. Dr. Zhang has been also practicing law as a PRC qualified attorney since 2008. For the past five years, he has published two monographs in English regarding venture capital. Also, a number of his articles were published by globally recognized journals including Corporate Governance of Chinese State-controlled Listed Companies: a Revisit through the Lens of Venture Capital, 15 EUROPEAN BUSINESS ORGANIZATION LAW REVIEW (2014) and The Potential Rise of Hostile Takeovers in China: Efficiency, Politics and Law, 12 CHINA: AN INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL (2014). His research interests are primarily on business law, Chinese law, and international economic law. He can be contacted at: linzhang@korea.ac.kr

Natalia Yeti Puspita is Senior Lecturer at the Faculty of Law, Atma Jaya Catholic University of Indonesia and is currently Ph.D. candidate at the Faculty of Law of Gadjah Mada University, Indonesia. Her main teaching and research interests focus on Public International Law, International Organization Law (ASEAN Law), and Disaster Management Law. Ms. Puspita has presented her papers in several international conferences such as the 5th ASLI Conference (2008) in Singapore; the 3rd Conference Asian Society of International Law (“AsianSil”) (2011) in Beijing; the Joint Conference of the ANZSIL & AsianSil (2012) in Sydney; the ILA Regional Conference (2013) in Athens, etc. She was a visiting fellow in the Radboud University of Nijmegen, The Netherlands (2009) and an Asian Law Institute (ASLI) Fellow in the National University of Singapore (2010). She may be contacted at: natalia.y.p@atmajaya.ac.id

Hao Shen is Assistant Professor of East China Normal University School of Law. His main teaching and research interests include legal regime for international deep seabed mining, environmental protection, and climate change. He completed his Ph.D. through the China-US Fulbright Doctoral Dissertation Program. As a Fulbright Scholar at Columbia Law School, he did research with Professor Michael Gerrard on the US climate change litigation which was also a focus of his Ph.D. Dissertation. Professor Shen has published several articles in China's leading journals and co-authored a book entitled RESEARCH ON LAWS REGULATING THE EXPLORATION AND EXPLOITATION OF DEEP SEABED RESOURCES (in Chinese) published by Fudan University Press in 2015. He may be contacted at: hshen@law.ecnu.edu.cn

Yi Chao is currently a doctoral (DCL) student at McGill University Faculty of Law, Canada. Prior to doctoral study, he obtained LL.M. (International Law) and LL.B. from Peking University Law School, China. Yi studied international law at Columbia University Law School as an exchange student. His research interests include international dispute resolution, international refugee law, and treaty interpretation. He previously served as the Executive Editor-in-Chief of Peking University International and Comparative Law Review and research assistant in Peking University Institute of International Law. His recent works have been published at NEW ZEALAND JOURNAL OF PUBLIC AND INTERNATIONAL LAW, GONZAGA JOURNAL OF INTERNATIONAL LAW and CHINESE YEARBOOK OF INTERNATIONAL LAW. He may be contacted at: yi.chao@mail.mcgill.ca

Sunjoo Kang is Professor at the School of Nursing at Cheju Halla University. She majored in Nursing and Law and earned a B.S.N. from the Armed Forces Nursing Academy in Daejeon and then a B.L. and a M.S.N. in Nursing Administration from Yonsei University in Seoul. Professor Kang was also awarded a Master's and Ph.D. in Law from Daejeon University, Korea. Her vision for education is to help nursing students facilitate an essential shift in nursing outcome management by laying the foundation of practical thought through legal principles for the protection of human rights to accomplish health equity in a global setting. Her research focuses on global health and nursing, health care related legal issues, disaster management, nursing quality improvements and patient safety. She may be contacted at: ksj5139@chu.ac.kr

Yunjoo Kim is a Vice-Director of Daegu Center for Infectious Diseases Control and Prevention. Her research focuses on care of people living with HIV. She worked as a counseling nurse at hospital based counseling service for people living with HIV in the Kyungpook National University Hospital for seven years. She completed her Master degree in Public Health in the Graduate School of Kyungpook National University and is currently a Ph.D. candidate at the same school. She may be contacted at: fieldhappy@naver.com

Insook Kim is Professor at College of Nursing and Kim Mo-Im Nursing Research Institute of Yonsei University, Seoul, Korea. She is also a senior research fellow at Department of Medical Law and Ethics at Graduate School of Yonsei University. Her research focuses on nursing management, leadership and human resource management in nursing and patient safety. She may be contacted at: iskim@yuhs.ac.kr